

Alexander Handyside Ritchie RSA

RSA Obituary, transcribed from the 1870 RSA Annual Report

Alexander Handyside Ritchie, sculptor, died on the 23d April. He had been for many years an Associate of the Academy, and although latterly, owing to infirm health, he was little known to the public, yet at an early period in his career he executed several works which show him to have been an artist possessed of no small amount of true feeling and skill.